After a successful first run earlier this year with performances by Jacob Jeffries Band, Rachel Goodrich, Spam Allstars, Conjunto Progreso (with Arturo Sandoval), and other Miami staples, the DWTWN Miami Concert Series kicks off its second season this week.

Put on by the Miami Downtown Development Authority and the John S. and James L. Knight Foundation, the series brings concerts to Bayfront Park with performances by many of the lively, unique acts that call Miami home.

Best of all: It's free.

The new season kicks off at 5:30 p.m. Friday features the eclectic sounds of Suenalo Sound System and roots reggae band Jahfe.

Here is the rest of the lineup:

- Nov. 13: Laura Izibor
- Jan. 8: PALO!
- Feb. 12: South Florida Jazz Orchestra with Nicole Henry
- March 12: Bachaco
- April 9: SafetySuit
